

Notes on Contributors

Hyun-Chin Lim (hclim@snu.ac.kr)

Hyun-Chin Lim is Professor Emeritus of Sociology and Director of Civil Society Programs, Asia Center, at Seoul National University. He is also an elected member of the National Academy of Sciences, Republic of Korea. Currently, he serves as President of East Asian Sociological Association. He received his B.A. and M.A. in Sociology from Seoul National University, and his Ph.D. in Sociology from Harvard University. He was previously the dean of Faculty of Liberal Education, the dean of the College of Social Sciences, and the founding director of Asia Center, all at Seoul National University. His books include Mobile Asia, Global Capitalism and Culture in East Asia, Capitalism and Capitalisms in Asia, and Asia on Rise: Civilizational Turn.

Hyug Baeg Im (hyugim@naver.com)

Hyug Baeg Im is currently Professor Emeritus, Korea University. He received Ph.D. from the University of Chicago. He had been the Chaired Professor, Gwangju Institute of Science and Technology, the Dean of Graduate School of Policy Studies, Korea University. He served as an EC member of IPSA, 2009-2014. He had taught as a visiting professor at Georgetown University (1995-1996), Duke University (1997), Stanford University (2002-2003) He has been awarded Best Academic Award from Korea Academy of Science (2015), ICAS Best Book Prize (2017), and Best Academic Achievement Award from Korean Political Science Association (2010). His recent publications include, Democratization and Democracy in South Korea, 1960-Present (Palgrave Macmillan, 2020), The Possibility of Peace in the Korean Peninsula (SNU Press, 2017), and The Origins of Yushin: Machiavelli Unveiled (Harvard Univ. Press, 2011).

Hsin-Huang Michael Hsiao (michael@gate.sinica.edu.tw)

Hsin-Huang Michael Hsiao is Adjunct Research Fellow/Professor of Institute of Sociology, Academia Sinica; Chairman of Taiwan-Asia Exchange Foundation; Chair Professor of Hakka Studies, National Central University; and Senior Advisor to the President of Taiwan since 2016. His current research areas include: middle class, civil society and democracy in Asia; social transition to de-carbonized society in Taiwan; comparative Hakka studies in Taiwan and Southeast Asia. His most recent book publications are: Writing Taiwan's Third Sector History (co-editor, 2023); Three Divides: Transformation of Hakka Ethnic Politics in Taiwan (co-author, 2022); The Many Faces of Taiwan's Cultural Diplomacy (co-editor, 2022); The Ethnic Relations of Hakka Belts in Taiwan and Malaysia (co-editor, 2022); China Impact: Attitude Changes in Taiwan and Hong Kong (co-editor, 2022), and The Volatility and Future of Democracies in Asia (co-editor, 2022).

Haeran Lim (hrlim@snu.ac.kr)

Ms. Haeran Lim is a Professor at the Department of Political Science and International Relations, Seoul National University. She specializes in comparative politics, East Asian and international political economy. Formerly, she was the vice-president of the Korean Political Science Association (2019), the director of the Institute of Korean Politics at SNU (2010-2012), visiting fellow at Brookings Institute (2007-2008). Her research interests include political economy of industrial policy and transformation, and globalization and trade policy. She has published numerous papers and books, including International Political Economy and East Asia, Revisiting East Asian Developmental Model, Crisis of Democracy and Economic Reform in Korea, Democratization and Transformation Process of Developmental States, and Korea's Growth and Industrial Transformation (Macmillan) among others.

Ik Ki Kim (ikki@dongguk.edu)

Ik Ki Kim is currently director of East Asia Well-Ageing Research Center in Korea. He used to be a professor of sociology at Dongguk University. After retirement he taught at Renmin University of China for 4 years as a Xin'ao International Outstanding Professor. He received BA at Seoul National University and MA at the University of South Carolina, then got Ph.D in sociology at the University of Michigan. His main research area is East Asia, mainly comparing current situations in Korea, Japan and China. His recent publications also deal with East Asia including "Comparison of participatory activities of the urban elderly in Gyunggi Province(Korea) and Shandong Province(China).", "China, South Korea, Japan and Covid-19", and 'Beijing and Seoul, Modern to Hypermodern'.

Tatsuro NIKAWA (tnikawa@mail.doshisha.ac.jp)

Tatsuro Niikawa is Professor Emeritus of Doshisha University. He is also Visiting Professor of Research Institute for Humanity and Nature. He was former Professor of Public Policy at Graduate School of Policy and Management of Doshisha University. He studied political science at the Graduate School of Political Science of Waseda University. His major fields of research are the study of government, governance, public administration, public policy analysis, citizen participation and social innovation. His publications and research articles focus on local government and governance, deliberative democracy and participatory decision making, social enterprise and business, civil society organization and citizen advocacy in Japan and comparison with other democratic countries.

NGUYEN Huu Minh (minhnguyen.ifgs@gmail.com)

NGUYEN Huu Minh (Ph.D in Sociology, University of Washington, USA) is Professor of Sociology, the President of Vietnam Sociological Association; a High Senior Researcher of the Institute for Family and Gender Studies (IFGS), Vietnam Academy of Social Sciences. He was Director of the IFGS (2005-2017), Vice-Director of the Institute of Sociology (1999-2005). Some of his recent books, book chapters (and co-author) include: Vietnamese family in the context of industrialization, modernization and integration from comparative approaches (Social Sciences Publishing House-SSPH, Ha Noi. 2014); Gender dimensions of social exclusive towards a more comprehensive policy for women (SSPH, Ha Noi. 2017); "Care Relations among Non-coresident Families", in Wongboonsin and Tan (Editors): Care Relations in Southeast Asia: The Family and Beyond (Brill Publisher. 2019).

Wang-Hwi Lee (leew@ajou.ac.kr)

Wang Hwi LEE, Ph.D. (London School of Economics and Political Science), is professor of political science at Ajou University, Suwon, South Korea, where he has taught international political economy since 2006. This year, he is a vice president of Korea Association of International Studies (KAIS). Currently he advises the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Ministry of Industry, Commerce and Energy, and Ministry of Science and ICT on economic security issues. His research interests have been focused on issues of the political economy of East Asia and the US-China strategic competition. He is the author of "The Politics of Economic Reform in South Korea: Crony Capitalism after Ten Years", "Pulling South Korea away from China's Orbit: The Strategic Implications of the Korea-US Free Trade Agreement", " US-China Cooperation on Climate Change at COP26 - Policy Implications for Environment and Energy", and "Crisis Management of the COVID-19 Pandemic in South Korea, Taiwan, Hong Kong, and Singapore."

Jonghoe Yang (jhyang@skku.edu)

Jonghoe Yang is Professor Emeritus in the Department of Sociology, Sungkyunkwan University, Seoul, Korea. He was President of the Korean Sociological Association in 2005. He published both books and articles on such topics as development and change, sociology of culture and arts, environmental consciousness, and middle class. His recent publications include Development, Class, and Culture: Aspects of Socio-cultural Change in Modern Korea (2012, Green), Citizenship and Migration in the Era of Globalization (co-editor, 2013. Springer), and Global Capitalism and Culture in East Asia (co-editor, 2019, Baiksi).

Suk-Ki Kong (skong@snu.ac.kr)

Suk-Ki Kong is Research Professor of Asia Center at Seoul National University. He studied sociology and received B.A., M.A. from the Department of Sociology at SNU and his Ph.D. from the Department of Sociology at Harvard University. He is also Adjunct Professor of Graduate School of Public Policy and Civic Engagement at Kyung Hee University. His major fields of research are social movements, human rights, civil society and social economy. His publications and research articles focus on social movements, civil society, democracy and citizenship, local community and resilience, and social economy in East Asia as a comparative context.

Taekyoon Kim (oxonian07@snu.ac.kr)

Taekyoon Kim is professor of international development in the Graduate School of International Studies, Seoul National University (SNU). He is currently working for the SNU Social Responsibility as the Chair, as well as the Prime Minister Office's Committee on International Development Cooperation as a Board Member. His scholarly works cover international development, Global South studies, peace studies, and international political sociology.